New KWC ONO chrome finish series exudes style and function

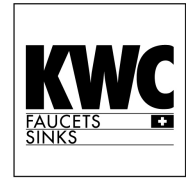

NORCROSS, Ga. (April 2009) – Complementing its popular stainless steel collection, the KWC ONO kitchen chrome finish series faucet offers enhanced styling and performance. The KWC ONO chrome-plated brass collection includes five new kitchen faucet models—two centrally operated and three side activated.

“The new KWC ONO chrome collection was designed with consumer diversity in mind,” says Stephanie Stevens, Inside Sales Manager of KWC AMERICA. “It defines architectural appeal in the kitchen while allowing for superior functionality and user-friendliness.”

The two centrally operated faucets provide the user with great versatility and consistently simple design. Homeowners can choose from an elegant single lever mixer with pull-out spray and a flexible swivel spout model creating a wider range of motion.

The side operated collection allows for an elevated range of movement and greater flexibility for the user. Choose from two faucets featuring high, horizontal spouts one that is elegantly curved with a joint-less pull-out aerator. All five models are exceptionally high-performance and provide flexibility and ease of use with different sized containers.

The KWC ONO also incorporates JETCLEAN technology. The pull-out spray has a sieve made of a material that allows the holes to expand when water flows. If hard water build-up does occur, it can simply be removed from the flexible sieve material.
